New policy regarding mobile phones and smart watches

In the run up to our Semester Two exams, we are introducing new rules regarding mobile phones and smart watches in examinations.

As you should all be aware, mobile phones and smart watches are strictly prohibited from being on your person during an exam. All phones and smart technologies must be left in safe keeping in your bag or coat in the designated area of the examination room.

If you do not have a safe place to leave your phone or wearable technology, you must use one of the clear resealable plastic bags available from the Invigilators. Place your items in the bag (switched off) and leave it under your desk with the display face down.

You may return the bag to the invigilators at the end of the exam.

Your co-operation is greatly appreciated.

Regards, the Examinations Office
